Assessing Skill Deficits

Behavior analysis focuses on the reduction of maladaptive behaviors and the increase of desirable skills. In order to know how to best (a) target, (b) teach, and (c) motivate learners, a skill assessment must be performed. Participants will learn the difference between acquisition/skill deficits, performance deficits, and fluency deficits. This program builds on the topic of task analyses, as these TA's are used to collect data during the skills assessment process.
